The master's thesis examination consists of a single test: presentation and defence of master's thesis.

3. All tests will be conducted online, in real time, before the examination committee, using a platform selected by the faculty that allows for simultaneous transmission, (live) reception, and audio-video content recording. Both the examination committee and the students will have their video cameras turned on during the examinations.
4. The online examination of graduation/diploma exam evaluations, as well as the online defence of the master's thesis, are both entirely recorded and stored at the faculty level for each graduate.
5. Fundamental and specialised knowledge will be assessed by an oral or written exam conducted online in the language in which it was studied.

For the online oral examination:

- a) The examination committee will draw up a list of questions for each group of students and will choose a question at random for each candidate so that the randomness of the selection may be observed.
- b) The student will have enough time to prepare the answer, but they will not leave the examiners' field of view or confer with anybody else in the room or over the phone/online during that period. Candidates who do or attempt to commit fraud will be disqualified from the examination.
- c) A minimum of 10 minutes will be allotted to the candidate to present their argument.
- d) It is not possible to dispute the results of oral examinations.

For the online written examination:

- a) The examination committee will compile a list of topics from which a set of questions will be chosen at random and assigned to each applicant via an electronic platform.
- b) The student will have enough time to prepare the answer, but they will not leave the examiners' field of view or confer with anybody else in the room or over the phone/online during that period. Candidates who do or attempt to commit fraud will be disqualified from the examination.

- c) Each candidate will provide answers via an electronic platform, and these answers will be recorded and archived at the faculty level for each graduate separately.
- 6. The presentation of the graduation/diploma thesis (second evaluation) will be conducted online, preferably in the same video session as the assessment of basic and specialized knowledge (first evaluation), with each candidate having at least 10 minutes to present their paper and at least 5 minutes to answer the examination committee's questions. The second evaluation can be conducted after the first evaluation.
- 7. The presentation of the master's thesis will be conducted online, with each candidate having at least 10 minutes to present their paper and at least 5 minutes to answer the examination committee's questions.
- 8. As the online assessment requires more examination committees than the written/face-to-face assessment, in order to prevent staffing problems, it is accepted as a derogation that:
 - a) The chair of the committee may be a university professor, associate professor, or assistant professor/lecturer.
 - b) The members of the committee must have a doctoral degree and be a teaching assistant, assistant professor/lecturer, associate professor, or university professor.
 - c) The committee's secretary/ secretaries must be at least doctoral students and are exclusively in charge of documents handling.
- 9. If a candidate is unable to access the platform on which the examinations are conducted for whatever reason, or has technical issues with their Internet connection, the examination committee may decide to reschedule the student's assessment in accordance with the exam guidelines (period, committee etc.).
- 10. Candidates must upload or send electronically to an address provided by each faculty all of the documents listed in the Regulation for organising and conducting the graduation examination for undergraduate and master's studies, signed (where applicable) and scanned in PDF format in order to register for the graduation/diploma/master's degree exam. Email addresses, electronic platforms, and other types of internet communication that allow for secure document transmission, downloading, and storing may be used by faculties. The only exception to this provision is the identity card type photos, which must be submitted to the Documents of Studies Office in paper format, in two copies, upon picking up the diploma.

All documents of graduates from other universities who come to UBB to take the graduation/diploma examination are also excluded from the provision. According to the terms of the collaboration protocol agreed with UBB, the institution that provided the education programme will submit the documents by post or courier delivery.
